CLAREMONT HIGH SCHOOL

Foreword

ANOTHER year has passed with its joys and sorrows, with its work and play. We cannot live it over again no matter how hard we try. Yet in the future one can recall this year to memory. In this book we have tried to give some little thought or picture about every phase of school life during the year 1928-29. And if, when you look into this book, it will aid you in remembering friends and good times, it will have served its purpose.

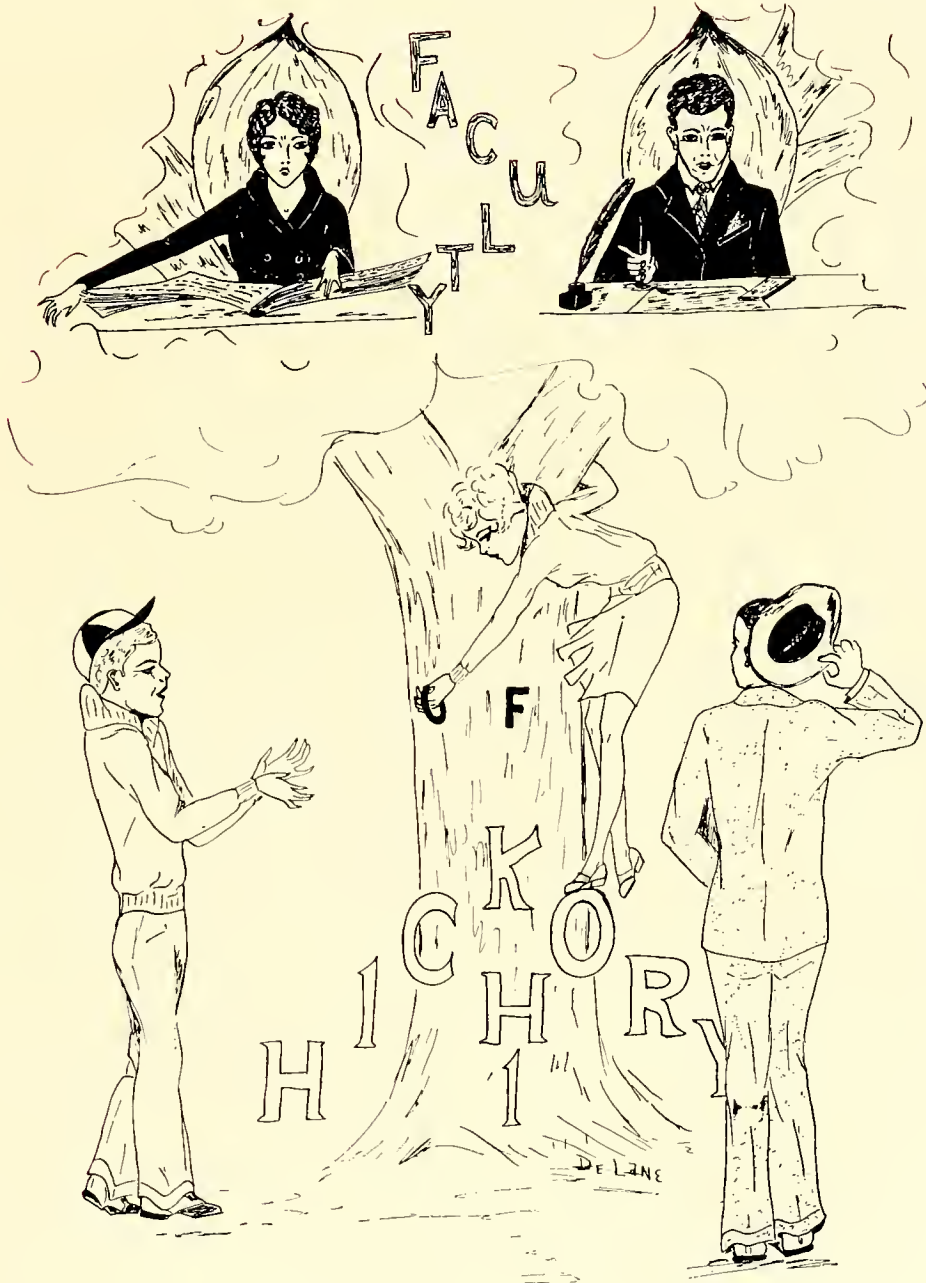

—THE EDITOR.

Our Janitors

Of all the janitors of the world,
We have the best you must agree,
For smiling, and working, and helping,
There could never better ones be.

When a lock is to be broken,
Or we must enter a room;
They can always be found
In the halls with their brooms.

And never a growl is heard,
And never a grumble or sigh;
But smiles on their faces are seen
As with all our wishes they comply.

Never seeming to grow weary or tired
They're busy from morn till night,
And it can easily be seen that
Without them our school would be a sight.

Of all the janitors of the world,
Here's to ours so fine
Who will long be remembered
For their willing work by the class of twenty-nine.

Senior Prophecy

I HAD just received my 1940 radio-television set and was anxious to know how to operate it. William Espey, the glib salesman representing the Harry Miller Television Company, guaranteed it to reach all parts of the world.

Turning the knob at random, I was surprised to see and hear Carroll Huffman who was announcing in very distinct tones, "This is station W W O of New York City. The first number will be a play, 'The Enchanted Room'." As the curtain arose upon a stage representing a drawing-room of the sixteenth century, who should I see but Kenneth Hart standing in front of the fire. On hearing the applause of the audience at the arrival of Martha Troutman and Ruth Lentz, immediately it flashed to my mind how well they had acted their parts in the plays of Hickory High. At the end of the first act, a musical program was rendered; in this all the participants were my former classmates. Elizabeth Mauney played the piano, Irene Wyant the harp, Lucy Johnson the violin, and the prima donna was Doris Pope. Since I had not heard from these in a long time, I was delighted to know of their success and it was to my disappointment that they rendered only two numbers.

A Washington broadcasting station, located in the Raleigh Hotel, which is managed by Adrian Doster and Robert Cody, was scheduled for a varied program, and as it was nearing 7:15 I tuned in that I might get it all. Senator Hal D. Jones walked to the microphone and in a most earnest manner warned the people of the evils present in the United States. This was followed by a talk on the development of modern medicine by Dr. Robert Warner, international brain specialist. Then a most interesting debate took place. The question was, "Resolved, that every high school pupil should be taught four years of Latin." Mr. Spratt, professor of Latin at Georgetown University, skillfully upheld the affirmative. Since the program was given especially for adults, it was concluded by a most fascinating bedtime story by Mary Bryant.

One station was giving announcements which were of interest to the whole world. The speaker announced that Virginia Cox had won the beauty contest for 1940; George Menzies, the Noble Prize for eliminating static from the radio; Harlan Creech was the champion tennis player; Inez Logan has received world recognition as the most expert typist; and Virginia Sigmon had won the $7,500 Stokes-Forum Magazine Prize for her biographical novel on the life of Samuel Thompson.

That afternoon I had bought a copy of a newspaper edited by Edgar Honeycutt and Guy Barger in Hickory, and I was surprised to see that they were going to give a program that night composed of home talent. The secretary of Chamber of Commerce, Eugene Short, was in charge of the program. He gave a brief talk on the development of Hickory during the last ten years, and then he presented Alan Bisanar who spoke on Hickory people supporting home concerns. Louise DeLane drew some cartoons for the children. Following this was an interesting story by the city librarian, Florence Boyd. Lillian Little, who is manager of the Hickory Florist Shop, gave a short discussion on kinds of flowers that can be grown in this climate. Announcement was made that Harold Frye had received the contract for the new department store, owned by Thomas Wilfong, the entire fifth floor to be occupied by a cafeteria run by Claudia Pitts, the basement to be a tea room managed by Virginia Flowers and Hazel Abee, and the mezzanine floor to have a beauty parlor supervised by Pauline Cline and Pauline Troutman. Then three young matrons, formerly Inez Hamrick, Bobbie Crouch and Virginia Tate, in turn told of the work the Woman's Club of Hickory was accomplishing. Several of the teachers from Claremont High School gave interesting talks. Catharine Bisanar discussed the importance of History; a play showing the advantage of a healthy body was presented by the gym class of Elizabeth Friday. The program was concluded by Irene Miller telling of the good times the grammar school children were having in their playground work.

A basketball game was being played at Durham between Duke and Carolina. The coach for Carolina was Herbert Nichols; Welch Bowman was the coach for Duke. Bus Newton was refereeing. My time was limited, so I hurried to another station.

On turning the dial, I was startled to hear the voice of John Bryan; when I looked on the screen, I could scarcely believe my eyes, but on realizing that it was coming from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. I was not shocked, for in high school he often talked of his future farm in South America. He was delivering a very interesting talk on better methods for wheat cultivation; but my desire to get other stations forced me to leave him and to see Marguerite Morrell and Rose Budd Walker telling a Bible story to the Chinese. I learned that they were missionaries and were enjoying their work very much.

In a large New Orleans department store, managed by Meek Payne, there was a dress revue. The models, one of whom was Louise Kever, were displaying the spring gowns designed by Martha Bothwell and created in the shoppe of Elizabeth Seaboch and Gertrude Deitz. As a result of the naive advertising of Berniece Sills, an interesting and select throng was assembled.

It seemed that I had heard from almost all my classmates, and I was just turning off the set when I heard Bliss Bowman from a station in Arizona lecturing on the fruit industry of the West. I heard only the last part, but from this I learned that William Hanna, the internationally known irrigation engineer, was now engaged in a huge government reclamation project. The announcer, Kenneth Warlick, made the statement that Guy Warlick, owner of one of the largest ranches in the West, had been seriously injured that afternoon by a fall from his airplane and that his secretary, Elizabeth Reece, had given the information that Lucille Kever had been wired to come immediately to nurse him. The announcer added that they were fortunate indeed in securing such an efficient nurse at this crucial time.

A literary society in Los Angeles was next to broadcast. Devotional exercises were led by Claude Huggins, prominent Methodist preacher of that city. A treatise on the "Monroe Doctrine," written by Alyne White, was read by Louise Thomas. This valuable work was formerly published in the Scribner's Magazine, managed by Norwood Perkins. John Fritz, English professor of Lenoir-Rhyne, gave a short talk on the literary work being done at his college, which fact brought to my mind that I had recently learned that Pauline Lopp, an old friend, was doing splendid work there as dean of girls.

This station was evidently the last one to broadcast, for after ten minutes of adjusting and changing, I could hear or see nothing. I leaned back in my chair, and as I thought over the various programs, I decided that radio-television was worth-while if I could find so much about the members of the class of 1929.

Senior Poem

Four joyous years we've spent within these walls,
Filled with strife or tears,
For joy dissolved the mist,
And only pleasure has been ours.

Four joyous years, and then—
Time will go on, women—men,
Each going his way,
Some of us will be great teachers, lawyers, millionaires.

So here's to our friends and schoolmates dear,
Who will think of us and with a sigh
Remember the days we spent with them in Dear Ole Hickory Hi.

When years have passed and sped away
Remember always this parting day,
The teachers who have steered us clear
And brought us to the end of this—
Our High School Career.

Junior Class History

(With apologies to Longfellow)

Listen, my schoolmates, and you shall hear
The tale of a class so brave and dear.
In nineteen hundred and twenty-six,
We came to school in a terrible fix.
Through the maze of Algebra, English, and "hours,"
We lost our heads and also our powers.
At the end of that memorable month of school,
We looked at our "f's" and tried to keep cool.

When the nine months of worry were over at last,
Only a part of our class had passed.
At last we, as Sophomores, showed our grit
And gave the rest of the classes a fit
With our witty remarks and our score of athletes,
Who had to refrain from both candy and meats.
While getting ready for twenty-nine,
Part of us stayed at the foot of the line.

Now that we have progressed so in learning,
Our hearts toward a goal of high aim are now turning.
This goal is to make this year be the best,
To treat all our hardships just as a jest,
So here's to the class of twenty and ten.
It will show off its honors to others, and then
It will go forth from school with a heart full of cheer.
The best class to be in many a year.

THE SOPHOMORE CLASS

History of the Sophomore Class

It is not because of custom or tradition that we feel called upon to set forth a history of the Sophomore Class, but as history is a record of facts and events of interest, we know that some parchment should be preserved, recording a history so eventful as that of the Sophomores has been.

In our two years, our number has been greatly augmented by transfers from other schools. Having covered just two years, there is much yet to be written. We have among our number those who have excelled in athletics, music, and drama, and whose combined efforts have added to make this the most distinguished Sophomore Class of Hickory High School.

Last year, being Freshmen, the girls served at the Junior-Senior Banquet, a great event of the school year. Soon after the new year started the class officers were elected, namely: William Moretz, president; Katheryn Miller, vice-president; Frances Stevens, secretary-treasurer.

There is a thrill in knowing that next year we shall be juniors. We are having lots of fun, have had lots of fun, and shall have lots of fun, but in justice to a hard working class, there is one thing to be said:

“We’re surely not traveling a rainbow trail.”
No foolin’.

A Freshman's Bewilderment

I've looked in the cellar, I've looked on the stairs,
And I've looked all over the wall,
But never yet have I seen the place
That they call "Detention Hall."

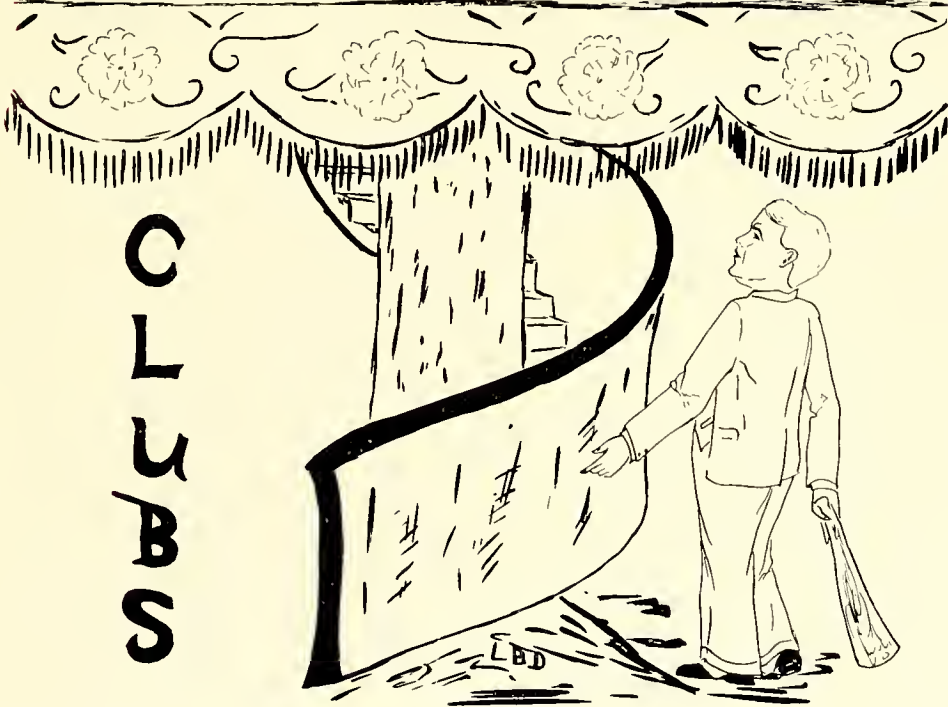

Each day as I look at the Bulletin Board
And the list upon the wall,
I read a summons to all my friends
To come to "Detention Hall."

When school is out and the time has come
For me to go down the hall,
I follow my friends, but they go to a room,
Instead of "Detention Hall."

Oh, Where! Oh, Where! is the awful place,
The place which my friends all call
By terrible names when they see the list?
Oh, where is "Detention Hall."

Hi-Y Club

The Hi-Y Club is a good organization which is six years old in our school. The club stands for the highest ideals. It stands for clean speech, clean sports, clean habits, and clean living. It enjoys its fun, it is true, but it also has a program of service. We have given several parties, and our initiation ceremony is very impressive. A delegate was sent to the "Tenth Annual Older Boys' Conference" at Morganton. About thirty members were enrolled in the club this year.

We, the members of the High School Orchestra, believe music is essential to our education. There is an enjoyment in practicing and playing together.

We take pride in helping other schools to present their plays and entertainments to the public. We have assisted Startown, Hildebrand, Longview, Highland, West Hickory, Viewmont, and best of all, Lenoir Rhyne, and the Carolina Playmakers.

Four of our members belong to the County Band, and we had a member in it at the First All-State Orchestra at Raleigh.

GIRLS' CLUB

History of Lambda Delta Gamma

WHEN the feminine sex had existed for about a month in this most beloved institution of learning, some of its members discovered that it would be impossible to remain here longer without an organization similar to the rival sex's "Hi-Y." Some of the most influential girls interviewed our principal, and having gained his much desired consent to the forming of such a club, called a meeting of all such persons as were interested in the idea. After the desires of those present had been received as to whom they should have to lead them, the most honorable president, Inez Hamrick, began to guide the society in the way it should go. To show their love and knowledge of foreign languages, the girls chose as the official name of their club three Greek words, "Lambda Delta Gamma." To prove that women are able to hold their tongues, they decided not to divulge to the boys the secret meaning of these words. Then they remembered that a club simply cannot exist without some code of ethics by which the members should live. The president, a few members, and the two faculty advisers, Miss Berry and Miss Crawford, drew up the desired standards of the club, and the members adopted them.

It was unanimously voted to count all members who came to the first meeting as charter members, and to receive all others with a cold-blooded initiation. When the first members were so received, the girls nearly went wild over the service. Some of the charter members resented that they could not enjoy the thrill of being taken into the club in such a manner.

Of course such an organization as this must observe Parliamentary law. After many mistakes the girls were finally made to understand that they must address Inez Hamrick as "Madame President" before they would be allowed to speak. The advisers soon discovered that the members were prone to speak too often to their friends, so they levied a tax of two copper cents on the income of any disturber.

Impromptu speeches being a good method of letting the members utter their thoughts without being charged, the girls endured many such speeches on the interesting topics of "Santa Claus" and "Why it was a good thing that this school did not close down on account of the 'flu.'" But who is able to judge? Lambda Delta Gamma may develop speakers, who in later years, will appall large audiences by their oratorical powers.

The Glee Club is an organization of budding musicians who aspire to accomplish "harmony" in Hickory High School. Having won fourth place in the State Music Contest at Greensboro in the spring of 1928, we consider them a credit to our school; they have previously brought home loving cups and first honors. It is a growing organization, having doubled its size in recent years. Wonders have been accomplished by the girls as they have conquered "The Wind," "Rain," "One Fleeting Hour," and "Big Brown Bear."

The Dramatic Club is an organization of beneficial value. It is an educational factor in the art of public speaking and yearly furnishes the little theater group of Claremont High School.

The class for the year nineteen hundred and twenty-eight has been very successful. A greater year for twenty-nine is expected. Through the efforts of Mrs. E. B. Menzies, and loyal members of the class, we expect to build up a dramatic class that will be the model for many years to come.

FOOTBALL SQUAD

Are The Red Tornadoes Really "The Scoring Champs"?

The following record will speak for itself: On September 21, Hickory High tumbled Taylorsville High by the overwhelming score of 71-6.

On the following Thursday, September 27, Morganton returned home with the little end of a 38-0 score.

In the third game on October 4, Hickory continued her winning streak by defeating Salisbury 26-7.

The next game, held on October 13, was closer, Asheville being defeated by the score of 19-12. What a thrilling game this was!

The "Red Tornadoes" journeyed to Waynesville on October 19, to defeat W. H. S. 20-0.

On October 26, Hickory High defeated Shelby by the score of 25-0.

On November 1, the Hickory squad ran rough-shod over North Wilkesboro, defeating them by the score of 84-0.

In the State Elimination series Waynesville journeyed to Hickory November 9, to be defeated by the score of 51-0.

On November 16, the "Red Tornadoes" went to Statesville for the second game of the State Elimination Series and suffered defeat by the score of 6-0.

On the following Friday Hickory High traveled to Lincolnton to bring home the bacon by a 38-6 score.

In the last game of the season the "Red Devils" of Newton came to Hickory to return with the little end of a 121-0 score.

Thus ended the most glorious and gratifying football season in the history of Hickory High. All of the members of the class of 1929 will long remember our eleven as "The Scoring Champs."

To the Class of 1929!

Congratulations Upon Your Graduation

Best Wishes for Your Future

from

Lenoir Rhyne College, Hickory, N. C.

(The only Standard College in Western North Carolina)

Hickory and Catawba County students can attend Lenoir Rhyne College at one-fourth the cost at other colleges for the same advantages and recognition because they can remain at home.

Lenoir Rhyne College thus saves Catawba County residents at least $40,000 annually in the education of their children.

Each year Faculty, Students and Constituency are making at Hickory a Greater Lenoir Rhyne.

Jokes

SISTER: "I said no, to that good looking man yesterday."

BROTHER: "Why, do you mean to say he proposed to you?"

SISTER: "No, he was trying to sell me an automobile."

BUS NEWTON: "Luther Leach is cutting his wisdom teeth."

ADRIN D.: "What's he cutting them with?"

TEACHER: "When you see an opportunity, grab it."

JOHN FRITZ: "I grabbed one, but it turned out to be a storm."

HE: "If I had the nerve I would kiss you."

SHE: "Poor thing, you haven't got the nerve of a grasshopper."

MARGARET ABERNETHY: "Louise, what are you going to do with that century plant?"

LOUISE DELANE: "Give it to Miss Berry when it blooms."

MRS. MENZIES: "Donald, give me a sentence using the verb hit."

DONALD STINE: "The man hit me with a spike tail coat."

HE: "Honey, will you please show me what goes from mouth to mouth?"

SHE: "I can't show you, but I'll tell you."

HE: "Come on now, I don't mean gossip."

MISS MCCOMB: "Bliss, give me a sentence using double."

BLISS B.: "If I do anything wrong here in school it will double three times when Mr. Thompson hears it."

HUGH MORETZ: "Is that man running from that train?"

ROBERT NICHOLS: "Yes, he's chewed so much Brown's Mule Tobacco that every time he sees a train he gets scared."

NOTICE!

To the Students of Hickory High School

Listen! If a man were to pull you out of a hole, wouldn't you feel very grateful to him? Well, our advertisers haven't pulled us out of a hole, but have kept us from going to the wall. Now, all together, let us help those who help us. The non-advertisers seem to think that we are too young to make it pay. So take a hint and don't tickle those who think we are too young to tickle them. Give your business to the following:
